

Tight race for both parties

Candidates remain hopeful

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Vice President George Bush forecast a win but Sen. Bob Dole showed confidence Monday as the GOP presidential field sprinted for the finish line in a tight New Hampshire primary race. Democrat Michael Dukakis said his expected win might be smaller than predicted.

Bush campaigned side by side with former Sen. Barry Goldwater, patron saint of conservatives, as he threw all his campaign could muster into a bid to arrest Dole's week-long surge and regain his own political footing.

One candidate after another posted hopeful predictions of a surprise when New Hampshire voters render their verdict in the nation's lead-off primary on Tuesday.

"I don't know where all those political pundits are today but they ran for cover four years ago and they're likely to run for cover tomorrow," said former Delaware Gov. Pete du Pont, back in the pack in the GOP race.

Rep. Jack Kemp, his GOP candidacy on the line, held out the hope of a second-place finish that would confound the pollsters. "I'm going to finish in a good competitive third or higher," he said.

Democratic Sen. Paul Simon, also facing tough times if he falters, said he was sure he'd defeat Rep. Richard Gephardt for second place. Referring to Dukakis' commanding lead in the polls, he said, "I think there is a possibility of a real surprise coming tomorrow."

Fellow Democrat Bruce Babbitt, far off the pace in the polls, said, "I'm anticipating a strong showing and a surprise but I can't put a number on it."

Former television evangelist Pat Robertson bid to deal with a tempest that arose over his claim that the Soviet Union has offensive nuclear missiles in Cuba. The Reagan administration denied the claim, but the GOP hopeful said, "The least we can do is remove those nuclear missiles."

Democrat Dukakis' lead seemed secure, to judge by the polls, but he and his aides worried that they would be held to an impossible standard when the New Hampshire results are analyzed. Thus, he noted that his rivals have been attacking him regularly, adding, "I assume that's going to take its toll."

Dukakis, governor in next-door Massachusetts, held a commanding lead among the Democrats with support of roughly 40 percent of the voters. Gephardt and Simon, who finished a close one-two in Iowa's caucuses last week, are in a duel for second place. Jesse Jackson, Babbitt, Gary Hart and Sen. Albert Gore Jr. are far afield in the polls.

Among the Republicans, the surveys said that Dole has wiped out all of Bush's once-commanding lead in the eight days since the Kansas senator won the Iowa caucuses and the vice president slipped to third place behind Pat Robertson. Robertson, Kemp and du Pont are in a close fight for third place in the same surveys.

What the polls couldn't say was whether Dole's momentum would carry him past a struggling Bush to first place.

The vice president had his retooled, informal campaign style on display. He went from one restaurant to another to greet voters at breakfast time, ordering pancakes at one stop, sipping coffee at a second and eating an Egg McMuffin during a visit to a McDonald's.

Bush attacked Dole's call for a spending freeze as a "copout" that avoids making tough decisions, and forecast a victory for himself in the lead-off primary.

"I'm going to win tomorrow. Believe me," he told a cheering crowd at Daniel Webster College in Nashua.

Dole and his senior aides sounded confident. "I think it's that close," said Dole, who said a victory in New Hampshire might carry him all the way to the GOP nomination.

"I'm always skeptical until the polls close," he said, but then added that he had followed his pollster's example and "slept well last night."

Among the Democrats, Simon urged New Hampshire's voters "to assert their independence" from Dukakis.

"There is a difference between me and Michael Dukakis, a difference in experience, a difference in commitment," he said.

Presidential candidates launch bitter attacks as primary draws near CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Jack Kemp calls the vice president of the United States an "embarrassment" to the Republican party. Paul Simon asks whether Democrats can trust a man who has supported nuclear power and the B-1 bomber.

Candidates are on the attack as the New Hampshire primary campaign rushes to its climax Tuesday.

For several of the dozen candidates bidding for support in the first presidential primary of this election year, Wednesday looms as a day for unpacking and putting their White House dreams in storage.

That prospect lends an air of desperation to their tactics and heightens the temptation to lash out at the opposition, especially those leading in the polls.

Kathleen Hall Jamieson, a University of Texas professor, said negative ads are appearing earlier than in past presidential contests.

While candidates may get some short-term benefit from savaging their opponents, she warned, "anyone who goes on the attack risks looking non-presidential."

Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas chipped away at Vice President George Bush's once formidable lead in national polls by suggesting that Bush was more bystander than participant in Reagan administration councils.

That tactic worked well in Iowa and now Bush, looking more like an underdog, has adopted it in New Hampshire and is portraying Dole as a Senate leader who failed to get Robert H. Bork a seat on the Supreme Court.

Most of the attacks stay within a limit that enables the attacker to claim he's using comparative, not negative advertising.

The most egregious example of an attack that went beyond normal bounds was material distributed by supporters of former television evangelist Pat Robertson that suggested a member of Rep. Jack Kemp's family had an abortion.

Kemp aide Mary Brunette said the allegation was "a lie. There's absolutely no truth in it whatsoever."

The $30 million Utah County Government Regional Center, which is currently under construction, is scheduled to open on July 1. The center, located near the corner of Center Street and University Avenue, will house most of the county administrative offices.

Utah county government center scheduled for July 1 opening

By BRIAN P. MAULDWIN

The new $30 million Utah County Government Regional Center is scheduled to open this summer, according to Utah County Engineer Clyde Naylor.

The center, located near the corner of Center Street and University Avenue in Provo, will be the administrative hub of county government and will also provide substantial state office space. It consists of a six-story 205,000 square foot state administration building, a four-story 80,000 square foot county building and a 700-car parking garage.

"The construction has had its up and downs but it's pretty close to being on schedule," said Naylor. The opening date is set for July 1.

According to Naylor, construction of the building was approved in December 1986 by the Utah County Municipal Building Authority, and construction began in January 1987.

With the exception of the courts and the court clerks, all county administration offices will be moved into the new building. Although some county offices are located in the existing county courthouse, there is not room to accommodate many other offices.

"Right now most of the county offices are in temporary locations around town," said Naylor. "Once they move in (to the new building) there will be a place where the public can go for all county administrative functions."

Many of the state offices and services will also move to the new state facility. "Now, all of the state offices are all over Utah Valley," said Project Manager Rulan Gardner.

The center is unique in the way it brings administrative services together in one building, and in the way it is being developed. Traditionally, government administration has been in charge of construction, financing and development of public buildings.

"For the first time, the private sector is coming in and building a project like this ... on time and on budget," said Gardner.

The project is the result of a combined effort of MHT Architects, Jacobsen Construction and the Boyer Company which is in charge of development.

"We assembled a team to put this together for design, finance and construction," said Kevin Brown of Jacobsen Construction.

SSABYU replaces ASBYU

By LISA ANNE FULLER
Universe Staff Writer

ASBYU as an organization and acronym will be replaced with this year's elections and subsequent implementation of SSABYU, the new Student Service Association of BYU, according to the restructuring advisory committee chairman.

SSABYU is the culmination of ASBYU restructuring activities resulting from inadequacies in former structure and philosophy of student government, said Alan Manwaring.

According to the ASBYU restructuring proposal, the intention of restructuring "has been to create an organization that is more consistent with the nature of the university and more relevant to the majority of students."

One need for a new name was student's falsely perceived notion that ASBYU was a student government, said Manwaring.

"It is not a government," he said. "ASBYU was perceived as being a government and had the title of student government, but 'government' connotes a mandate we don't have at the university."

Rush Sumpter, assistant director of Student Programs, said the term "government" was avoided when referring to the new student association and its functions.

The committee recognized that the association was sanctioned by the Board of Trustees through the University administration and didn't have mandating power of its own.

The understanding of the association's authority is correctly reflected in its title, said Manwaring.

"I think one of the greatest problems ASBYU has had in the past has been this problem of having false expectations from both the students and the administration," said Manwaring.

The students felt that ASBYU was supposed to perform to a certain governmental level because of outward signs such as the name "government" and the existence of elections, he said.

The administration and people involved in ASBYU also had different perceptions of the purpose and duties of ASBYU, said Manwaring.

"In many respects, that has been the reason behind all the apathies. In the past no one understood the purposes (of ASBYU) and no one had a clear definition of what the purposes were," he said.

The restructuring committee's objective in forming the new SSABYU was based on an orientation of service and advisory as "opposed to programs for programs' sake," the restructuring proposal says.

The committee's thinking was influenced by the two- or three-year-old suggestion that ASBYU should have a gift office, said Rush Sumpter, assistant director of Student Programs.

The idea came from the message in a filmstrip narrated by Spencer W. See SSABYU on page 2

SSABYU will be voluntary; proposal stresses leadership

By LISA ANNE FULLER
Universe Staff Writer

Many differences between ASBYU and the new Student Service Association of BYU arise as a result of a stronger emphasis on service.

"One big difference between the old ASBYU and the new SSABYU is that it has a service emphasis, and that's quite significant," said Alan Manwaring, restructuring advisory committee chairman.

"In the past there has always been a service emphasis in theory, but there wasn't a legitimized, written-down concept of the purpose behind the organization that is there now," said Manwaring.

Leadership skills

He said the restructuring proposal states that along with fostering "a great variety of kinds and amounts of services," SSABYU will also be helping to develop leadership skills.

Rob Daines, ASBYU president, said "This is a Mormon university to train future leaders."

Opportunities for students to learn and practice principles of leadership as taught by Christ will be provided by the association, the proposal says.

Another difference between the two organizations is that participants in SSABYU are not supposed to devote more than 15 hours each week to the association, it says.

Rush Sumpter, assistant director of Student Programs, said the vice presidents should delegate their responsibilities in order to meet the 15-hour guideline.

Daines said "some people will probably end up at certain times working more than 15 hours."

Manwaring said, "We want students to be able to do this on a volunteer basis and not give more than 15 hours a week." They should be able to be normal students who could get a job if they needed one.

Another difference between ASBYU and SSABYU is that service will be on a voluntary basis rather than compensating the officers for their work.

Scholarships

Because the focus is on service, it seems inappropriate to pay for it, said Daines. "I think paying creates wrong incentives for people to get involved in something."

"People are the fuel of any association," said Daines. "If you're putting the wrong fuel into an engine, it's not going to work."

Getting people in a service association through non-service motives will clog up the program, he said.

According to the restructuring proposal, leadership scholarships will be set up for people in key positions of responsibility who are in financial need.

Determined by need

"Scholarships will be given out on a need basis," said Manwaring. Those who have positions of responsibility and who aren't able to contribute otherwise will be able to receive leadership scholarships, he said.

"Right now and for the next year or two while funds are being set up, appropriated ASBYU funds will be used," said Manwaring. "In the future, money will come out of the general scholarship fund."

Riot police clash with Arab protestors

JERUSALEM (AP) — Police fought Palestinians in the holy city Monday, and hospital officials said an Arab was wounded by gunfire. It was the first bloodshed reported in Jerusalem since riots in the occupied lands began Dec. 8.

In the West Bank town of Kfar Salem, 40 miles north of Jerusalem, military investigators questioned four young Arabs who say Israeli soldiers using a bulldozer buried them alive after a protest Feb. 5.

"I am afraid. I thought I was going to die," Abdel Latif Mahmoud Ishtiah, 19, said soon after he was questioned in a white police van. "I dream about it all the time."

Maj. Gen. Amram Mitzna, military commander in the West Bank, said a sergeant-major from the military government and two or three other soldiers were involved and would be tried.

He told army radio: "Even in my worst dreams, I would never imagine such a thing even though I constantly warn commanders to expect the most awful things that could happen when soldiers find themselves all of a sudden commanding and deciding the lives of citizens."

According to U.N. figures, 54 Arabs have been killed by Israelis since protests began in the West Bank and Gaza Strip, which Israel captured from Jordan and Egypt in the 1967 Middle East war.

Waldheim urges nation to support him

VIENNA (AP) — President Kurt Waldheim rejected the "slanders, hateful demonstrations and wholesale condemnations" of those who want him to resign and urged the nation Monday to unite behind him.

His televised speech deepened divisions caused by last week's report which questioned the president's moral integrity and said he was "in close proximity" to Nazi atrocities during World War II yet did nothing to stop them.

On Monday, he claimed without giving specifics that "parts of the report do not correspond to the facts but are built on presumptions and hypotheses. For that reason, the conclusions drawn cannot be upheld." Waldheim, 69, used highly emotional language in appeals both to World War II compatriots and those too young to know "the horrors of this war." He said he might have erred in not discussing his wartime past but said he never tried to conceal it. "I have a clear conscience." Chancellor Franz Vranitzky said in a televised interview Sunday, which was praised even by conservative critics, that Waldheim "did not deal exactly with the truth" and must restore his credibility.

Boat bumping does not sour relations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration's policy of keeping military and espionage blow-ups with the Soviet Union from slowing a drive for better overall relations is back in operation following the collision of U.S. and Soviet warships in the Black Sea.

The United States complained about Soviet actions in last Friday's incident by summoning Soviet ambassador Yuri Dubinin to a 20-minute protest meeting with the State Department's third-ranking officer.

The department issued a public condemnation.

Yet Secretary of State George P. Shultz has no plan to dwell on the incident when he goes to Moscow next week to discuss arms control, regional issues like Afghanistan and the superpower summit envisioned for the spring, according to an aide who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Indeed, the State Department's on-the-record reaction to what Navy officers called the deliberate and dangerous Soviet bumping of American warships operating innocently in the Black Sea included comments that conveyed more exasperation than outrage.

Soviets rally; protest U.S. interference

VILNIUS, U.S.S.R. (AP) — Soviet authorities staged an outdoor rally to protest alleged U.S. interference in Baltic affairs Monday, and officials cracked down on nationalists to prevent protests marking Lithuania's short-lived independence.

About 2,000 people gathered in a chill wind on Gediminas Square in central Vilnius for the official rally. Most kept their hands in their pockets and chatted with neighbors during the hour-long protest, and then quickly disappeared down the city's narrow streets.

Tuesday marks the 70th anniversary of Lithuania's declaration of independence on Feb. 16, 1918, only months after the Bolshevik revolution brought Communists to power in Russia. Lithuania was absorbed by the Soviet Union in 1940, a year after the Ribbentrop-Mototov Pact between Nazi Germany and the Soviet Union consigned most of the country to the Soviet sphere of influence. Authorities made it clear they wouldn't tolerate any show of nationalist sentiment Tuesday.

Man gets 25 years for shooting officer

POINT OF THE MOUNTAIN (AP) — A man who showed little remorse for shooting a Utah Highway Patrol trooper in the face was ordered to spend at least 25 years in prison by the state Board of Pardons.

The three-member panel imposed the term following a heated hearing, in which Danny Lee Johnson, 34, stridently defended the shooting as self defense and claimed he was the victim.

Johnson, whose next parole hearing was set for May 2011, was convicted of wounding Trooper Dennis Bringhurst with a sawed-off shotgun last May 27, after the officer stopped him on suspicion of drunk driving.

"I feel sorry for the guy, but I was wounded much worse than he was," and no one cares about me, Johnson told the board.

"My stomach muscles are all apart, I've got a hernia and the prison has refused to fix me."

Bringhurst was shot with a 12-gauge shotgun as he was approaching Johnson's car. The blast hit him in the cheek and ear, but he was able to fire at the fleeing car and wound the suspect. Johnson was arrested a short time later.

Kimball called "An Exchange of Gifts," he said.

"In that filmstrip, President Kimball called upon the Church to reach out, offering support to Lamanites who had given the Church the Book of Mormon," Sumpter said.

"And it's the same thing since the Church has given us as students so much. ... Let's give something back," said ASBYU President Rob Daines.

According to Sumpter, more than 70 percent of the tuition cost at BYU is paid as a grant through tithing money and students should be encouraged to give a gift back to the university in exchange.

Daines said he feels that the philosophy is "enter to learn, go forth to serve. One of the things you had to learn here is to learn how to serve."

Daines said that because students have the ability to contribute and make a difference in the world, they should start now and not wait until they are older to become self-sacrificing.

Included in the role of service is the advisory role, which, according to the restructuring proposal, is important because it is a way for the university community to hear student voices regarding policies and programs.

"We are a university family and just as in a family you have parents wanting to understand and know what their children think about the issues that concern the family as a whole, ... in the same light our university should have a structure set up so that the administration has a mechanism where they can find out how the students think," Manwaring said.

Polygamist clan members return to Marion compound

MARION (AP) — At least two members of a polygamist family returned Monday to the compound where a police officer was killed after a 13-day standoff last month, but it was unclear when they would move back in.

Roger Bates, son-in-law of clan patriarch Vickie Singer; Heidi Singer Swapp, 23, and an elderly woman who was not identified returned to the rural complex which police ringed for 13 days while trying to negotiate an end to the standoff.

The siege came to an end only after a flurry of gunfire left Department of Corrections dog handler Fred House dead and clan ring leader Addam Swapp, 27, injured with bullet wounds to his arm and chest.

"It's gonna take some fixup work before the place is livable," said Bates, as he looked over the damage to the complex. He would not say when the family would return to their homes.

The main log home, where six adults and nine children were holed up after the Jan. 16 bombing of a building belonging to The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, had been cordoned off by police since the siege ended Jan. 28.

The complex had been without electricity during much of the standoff.

President Ezra Taft Benson praises Scouts on 75 years

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saint President Ezra Taft Benson, marking the 75th year of association between the faith and scouting, praised the Boy Scouts of America during a fireside meeting beamed by satellite throughout the North American continent.

Benson, recalling his nearly seven decades in scouting, told LDS viewers at more than 1,000 satellite dish-equipped meeting houses, that all young men should earn the rank of Eagle Scout.

Speaking Sunday from the Salt Lake Tabernacle, Benson said that "one of the choicest experiences in my life was to serve in and participate in scouting."

"Scouting is a great builder of men for leadership training, for teaching love of country and building strong character. It is a builder of men — men of courage and spirituality," the church leader said, accepting two awards in recognition of the anniversary.

Ben H. Love, chief Scout executive, praised the Church as the first U.S. religious body to sponsor scouting. The Church was granted a charter on May 21, 1913.

"Today, the Church operates more scouting units than any other religious body. There has been steady growth since 1913 in both youth members and units. No other organization involved in scouting can claim this phenomenal growth record," said Love.

Charles Pigott, president of the Boy Scouts of America, recounted Benson's first assignment as scoutmaster in Idaho in 1918 and his later council, area and national leadership roles.

"We thank God for your dedicated leadership," he said.

Swapp considered himself persecuted like early leaders of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, will be detained on clear and convincing evidence, pending his April 6 trial relating to a grand jury indictment, according to a federal court judge.

U.S. Magistrate Ronald L. Boyce rejected requests by defense attorneys Friday claiming Swapp was motivated by stress during the bombing of a Kamas LDS Church Stake Center and subsequent 13-day standoff with police.

The indicted polygamist could face up to 70 years in prison and a $2 million fine if convicted, said Richard Lambert, assistant U.S. attorney at Swapp's detention hearing.

Swapp is charged with eight counts of a federal grand jury indictment including an attempt to kill a federal officer and the use of a bomb.

Defense Attorney William Morrison described Swapp as a "devout Mormon" who grew up in the "heartland of Mormonism, which has a great deal to do with his thoughts and his activities."

He said Swapp considers himself like the early LDS Church leaders who were persecuted for their beliefs and uncompromising standards. "It's something he should do to be a good member," Morrison said.

The unsuccessful wrongful death suit filed over John Singer's death, disputes with neighbors over water and school taxes with Summit County were just following a pattern established in early Mormon history, the defense said.

"I don't think it's society that needs to be protected from Addam in these circumstances. I think it's Addam who should be protected from society," Morrison said.

Lambert said Swapp, who issued threatening and denouncing letters to leaders of the LDS Church, neighbors and Marion officials before the siege,

Swapp detained; says it's not over

U.S. Magistrate Ronald L. Boyce rejected requests by defense attorneys Friday claiming Swapp was motivated by stress during the bombing of a Kamas LDS Church Stake Center and subsequent 13-day standoff with police.

The indicted polygamist could face up to 70 years in prison and a $2 million fine if convicted, said Richard Lambert, assistant U.S. attorney at Swapp's detention hearing.

Swapp is charged with eight counts of a federal grand jury indictment including an attempt to kill a federal officer and the use of a bomb.

Defense Attorney William Morrison described Swapp as a "devout Mormon" who grew up in the "heartland of Mormonism, which has a great deal to do with his thoughts and his activities."

He said Swapp considers himself like the early LDS Church leaders who were persecuted for their beliefs and uncompromising standards. "It's something he should do to be a good member," Morrison said.

The unsuccessful wrongful death suit filed over John Singer's death, disputes with neighbors over water and school taxes with Summit County were just following a pattern established in early Mormon history, the defense said.

"I don't think it's society that needs to be protected from Addam in these circumstances. I think it's Addam who should be protected from society," Morrison said.

Lambert said Swapp, who issued threatening and denouncing letters to leaders of the LDS Church, neighbors and Marion officials before the siege, gave a warning from his hospital bedside.

"It's not over. It's not going to quit. They think this thing is finished, but I'm not done," Lambert quoted Swapp as saying.

The prosecution cited events prior to the Jan. 16 bombing saying that Swapp had no respect for the government and rejected attempts by law enforcement agencies, including an arrest order and treaties, made to peaceably surrender or put the children out of danger.

"These were met with complete rejection," Lambert said.

He said Swapp was thoroughly acquainted with firearms and at the time he was wounded in the final minutes of the siege he was raising his gun in the direction of officers.

"He carried with him the key to resolve the danger. He refused and rejected all entreaties that ended in the loss of human life," Lambert said.

He called Swapp a man "not in touch with the views of this land," and "unstable with an exaggerated view of himself." Letters written by Swapp said the laws of this country had become so degraded that Hitler looked infinitesimal in comparison.

"He believes John (Singer) was murdered by the church and the state. It was and still is a conspiracy to take life," said Lambert.

"I don't think it's society that needs to be protected from Addam in these circumstances. I think it's Addam who should be protected from society."

Leukemia victim needs money

Fund raising for BYU graduate a disappointment so far

By LAURA F. JONES
Universe Staff Writer

A campaign to raise funds for a BYU graduate undergoing leukemia treatments in Seattle has not been successful, said a local sponsor.

Family and friends of Cari Larsen Moss, a 1984 BYU graduate, need approximately $15,000 to help pay for living expenses incurred while Cari is treated at the Fred Hutchinson Cancer Research Center in Seattle, said Jeff Chancey, a friend of the family. Only $1,200-1,500 has been raised.

Tom Moss, Cari's husband, said the fund raising has covered expenses so far, but more costs are coming up all the time.

"I thought people would be just overjoyed to give, but they aren't," said Pam Dixon of American Fork, who is heading the fund raising locally.

Contributions from members of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in Cari's hometown of Idaho Falls, Idaho, have helped, said Dixon. Fund raising efforts are being coordinated by Cari's aunt, Norma Swenson.

Dixon said the Moss family is in need of money because Tom is not working while his wife is being treated in Seattle.

"The doctors told him not to work," Dixon said. The presence of the patient's spouse can have a large impact on the patient's attitude.

Tom and their 20-month-old son Sean are with Cari, said Dixon.

Cari received a bone marrow transplant from her mother Shirley Larsen on Jan. 15, and is currently receiving blood donations from her brother, Tom said.

Cari was released from the hospital Thursday, but will remain an outpatient in Seattle for another 45 days, said Dixon. She is currently undergoing chemotherapy and radiation treatments to kill diseased blood cells.

"Things are going along pretty well as scheduled," said Ruth Moss, Cari's mother-in-law. "She is getting her health and strength back slowly but surely."

Tom said his wife is doing well, but doctors say the chances of full recovery are about 30 percent.

Ruth said Tom and Cari have been very optimistic through the experience. "Both have really good attitudes and we're very proud of them."

Cari began chemotherapy treatments last summer and the leukemia went into temporary remission, but she suffered a relapse in December. At that time, her local doctor referred her to the Seattle hospital for the transplant.

Cari originally discovered she had leukemia during a visit to her dentist. She was being treated for gum disease; her dentist became concerned when her gums would not stop swelling, even after being treated with antibiotics.

Tom and Cari have lived in Provo since 1985. Cari worked with individuals in state custody at Timpanogos Community Mental Health Center before being diagnosed with leukemia.

Fund raising for the family is being coordinated through the Elk's Lodge in Tooele. Anyone wishing to donate may send donations to First Security Bank, 70 S. Main, Tooele, Utah, 84074. Checks should be made payable to the Cari Larsen Moss Leukemia Fund.

Limits set on injury lawsuits; damages, attorney fees fixed

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The Senate on Monday passed a bill that would cap punitive damages in injury lawsuits at $500,000 and limit an attorney's share to 10 percent of the award.

Meanwhile, the House passed a similar bill that would give the state a share of the award in punitive damages cases.

Senators passed their bill 18-7 after removing a provision that would have sent 90 percent of the award to the state.

In addition to limiting the amount of punitive damages that can be awarded, the Senate bill also would require a plaintiff to prove the defendant deliberately or maliciously created the circumstances that caused the injury.

Willful conduct would not have to be proven in drunken driving cases.

The previous standard for punitive damages was proof of reckless negligence, imposed by the Utah Supreme Court in August 1987.

The bill's sponsor, Sen. Haven Barlow, R-Layton, said the old standard would open up Utah to high damage awards that could cripple the state's business climate.

Barlow, an insurance executive, said he decided to draft the bill after reading of a $10.5 million damage award given late last year to an elderly Salt Lake County woman who lost partial vision in one eye after being struck by a bottle cap while opening a container of Seven-Up.

Only $500,000 of the award was in compensatory damages and the remainder was punitive.

Supporters of the bill argued that it was the state, and not individual citizens, that should benefit from such huge claims.

"How can we justify these damages?" said Sen. LeRay McAllister, R-Orem.

The provision, which gives 90 percent of the proceeds to the state, was removed on an amendment proposed by Senate Minority Leader Rex

Black, D-Salt Lake.

"I don't think it's fair to take it from someone who has pursued the case and then give it to someone else," said Black.

Sen. Darrell Renstrom, D-Ogden, an attorney, protested the $500,000 cap. He said punitive damages were a valuable tool to teach business and industry to be careful and reduce potential hazards to employees and the general public.

Under the House bill, once an award is granted, the victim would receive up to $20,000 and attorneys fees would be paid. The remaining amount would be divided evenly between the victim and the state, with the state's share going to the Uniform School Fund.

The bill passed 42-28.

"These punitive damages fall as a windfall to one individual or a small group of individuals, when society as a whole was offended by what the defendant did," said the sponsor, Rep. Stephen Bodily, R-Lewiston.

Television sitcom provides proposal with a commercial

KINGSPORT, Tenn. (AP) — Watching a rerun of a television sitcom may not sound like the most romantic activity, but Jeff Smith decided he couldn't think of a better time to pop the question.

Smith, 25, bought 30 seconds of air time during a local station's broadcast of "It's A Living" to propose to Rhonda Munn.

Smith made sure Ms. Munn was at home watching station WETO with him Sunday night when his advertisement appeared midway through the show. The commercial showed Smith sitting in a chair listening to the Beach Boys' song "Help Me Rhonda" as he proposed marriage.

The hopeful groom said Ms. Munn was so bewildered by the sight of him on television that he had to get down on one knee and ask a second time for her to marry him.

"It was like she couldn't quite understand what was happening" when the ad ran, he said. "She was laughing and confused."

General preaches peace

By DOUG GIBSON
Universe Staff Writer

A retired brigadier general said America was at war and he preached a message of peace at a speech sponsored by the John Birch Society.

"We are at war," said Andrew Gatsis several times during his speech to approximately 200 people at Provo's Excelsior Hotel.

Gatsis, a veteran of the Korean and Vietnam wars, opened his speech with a fable about a frog. According to the fable, if one dropped a frog in hot water, it would quickly jump safely out. However, if put in lukewarm water and gradually heated up, the frog would cook before it would jump out. "America is being cooked into socialism, cooked into glasnost," Gatsis said, following the fable.

Most of the 90-minute speech was anti-Soviet as Gatsis accused the USSR of repeatedly violating treaties, instigating communist revolution around the world, being the front for several U.S. peace organizations and being the ringleader of world terrorism.

Gatsis recounted another story of a minister's son who went into the woods. Once in the woods he met a ferocious bear. Terror stricken, the youth dropped to his knees and prayed for deliverance. Looking up, the boy was amazed to see the bear kneeling in prayer.

The youth marvelled that they both believed in God. However, the bear replied that he was just saying grace before he ate.

This story was used by Gatsis to criticize efforts by talk show hosts and other organizations encouraging Americans to trust the USSR. Gatsis said periods of detente and arms reduction have weakened the United States to where the USSR has attained military superiority in the world.

Gatsis repeatedly condemned prominent American citizens during the speech. He spoke out against Jane Fonda, Martin Luther King, George Schultz, Rep. Stephen Solarz and his wife, most of the wives of the Democratic presidential candidates, the Democratic-controlled Congress and President Ronald Reagan.

Utah surrogate mother ban remains issue in Legislature

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Supporters are trying to revive a bill rejected by the House which would ban surrogate motherhood contracts in Utah.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. Kelly Atkinson, D-West Jordan, was defeated Monday on a 31-42 vote.

However, following the vote Rep. Kurt Oscarson, D-Sandy, was granted a request that the bill be held for reconsideration at a later date.

The measure would have outlawed contracts in which a woman consents to carry a man's child and give up all parental rights after the infant's birth.

Atkinson said the bill would permit the Legislature to study problems surrounding surrogate parenthood before children are born under such contracts. Atkinson has said he knows of no such agreements in the state. A handout he distributed to legislators indicates as many as 5,000 surrogate births have taken place nationwide.

Supporters of the bill criticized surrogate arrangements, saying they turned children into commodities. Atkinson said typical surrogate contracts include provisions which allow the contract parents to demand abortion if there are indications the child has birth defects.

Four basic principles help families succeed

By LISA A. SOWARDS
Universe Staff Writer

Research shows four basic principles help create a successful family: marriage, values, consistency and traditions, according to a Marriage and Family Awareness Week speaker on Friday.

"In a significant number of cases, children who have problems are manifesting the pains of their parents having a poor marriage," said Scot Allgood, who works in the adolescent ward of Utah Valley Regional Medical Center.

Allgood said that only 15 to 20 percent of couples in the United States are happily married.

"Happily married people generally have good, open lines of communication," he said.

"They can talk to their spouses about anything, they would rather spend time with each other than with other people and there are no significant secrets between them," he said.

Within The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, approximately 30 to 35 percent of the couples are happily married, said Allgood.

The reason for this difference is the emphasis the Church places on families and on their importance, he said.

He quoted President Harold B. Lee as saying, "The most important thing a father can do for his children is to love their mother."

The second basic principle that

Problem in marriage defined by speaker

By LISA A. SOWARDS
Universe Staff Writer

One of the most difficult problems marriages face today is preconceived meanings for behavior, a BYU professor said Thursday during Marriage and Family Awareness Week.

As people grow and mature, they or their "script" to their partner's behaviors, he said.

One solution for married couples, Harper said, is to "sit down as husband and wife, and talk about the meaning of the behaviors you exchange." Husbands and wives must be able to talk openly about their feelings.

Harper said there are three other things that create difficulty in marital relations. First, one partner sometimes is worried about work, the kids or money when he/she should be giving attention to his/her partner.

Second, often there is an inability to decide who makes what decisions in the marriage. Third, said Harper, if one or both spouses are constantly experiencing stress and fatigue, this can also destroy a relationship. "To have a loving, working relationship requires your attention and focus. It will not happen naturally."

Also, people should not assume that their marriage is something that can be ignored. Husbands and wives must accept each other and listen to one another, he said. Harper also said men and women proceed through the steps to sexual intercourse at different rates, which could create marital problems. Harper said studies show, "Those men who proceed through those steps slowly, will make the best marriage partners because they take their time and they're not in a hurry."

helps create a successful family, said Allgood, is teaching children values.

A study done at the University of Southern California showed that if "parents consistently sit down with their children, and not preach, but show them what their values are, that even if the children stray at some point in their life, they generally return to the parent's values," according to Allgood.

Marriage & Family Awareness Week

Another principle, said Allgood, is to give children well-defined roles that are age-consistent.

Parents also need to reinforce good behavior and rely on talking to their children rather than spanking them, said Allgood.

"Many parents focus on the negative because they want their children to be as perfect as they are." This attitude is unrealistic and frequently results in children with behavior problems, he said.

Traditions and rituals are the fourth principle to building a successful family, said Allgood.

According to a study done by the University of Nebraska, "Families who have a strong sense of identity, built through rituals, have a stronger family relationship," he said.

Lee Library staff to give lectures on BYU facilities

Members of Brigham Young University's Lee Library staff will be the featured speakers for the Flea Market of Ideas Lecture Series Feb. 16-18.

The topic for the three-day event is "The Library and the Life of the Mind at BYU." Lectures, which are free of charge and open to the public, will begin at 1 p.m. each day in 321 Wilkinson Center. The series is sponsored by the Honors Program.

On Tuesday Feb. 16, Dennis Rowley from Archives and Manuscripts will deliver a speech on, "Archives and Manuscripts at BYU: Treasure Vault or Supermarket." He will be followed at 2 p.m. by Chad Flake, curator of Special Collections. His topic is, "The Printing Press: Its Impact on the Renaissance."

Kayla Willey, computer applications librarian, will open Wednesday's lectures with her thoughts on "Research Quagmires: Cleaning Up the Muck Via Computers." Following her remarks, David Day of the Music Department in the Lee Library will speak on "Music Research and Music in Society" at 2 p.m.

On Thursday, Terry Dahlin from Documents and Maps and Robert Espinosa, library conservator, will speak.

Black bear habits will be discussed

Jordan Pederson, non-game mammals program coordinator for the Utah Division of Wildlife Resources, will discuss the habitat, movements and food habits of black bears today at BYU.

Pederson will speak at 7 p.m. in the Monte L. Bean Life Science Museum. Pederson is studying the ecology of black bears — the only kind of bear in Utah — in the Diamond Fork and Hobbie Creek area. He has worked as a conservation officer, as a wildlife biologist and as the regional game manager in the Utah Central Region. He received his doctorate from BYU in wildlife resources.

The event is sponsored by the Friends of Monte L. Bean Museum.

Ashworth has been effective in representing BYU to the people from the community who come to the office. CSD students are required to work with clients handicapped by disorders of communication. Ashworth has worked for BYU for 15 years.

For the past eight years, Colleen V. Schrader has been the Travel Office. She has issued at least 75,000 travel advances and at least that many related reimbursements. Her nominator said she puts at ease anyone who enters her office.

LeAnn McGrath's computer and management skills have helped greatly with her job as department secretary and manager of secretarial work for the Physical Education-Sports Department at BYU. McGrath has helped faculty members succeed by getting office work out on time and in good order.

Daines gets management school honor

Business professor chosen outstanding faculty member

By HISAYOSHI IWAMITSU
Universe Staff Writer

BYU's School of Management has selected Robert H. Daines, director of the Institution of Business Management, as a 1988 outstanding faculty member.

Daines said, "I feel very honored to receive it particularly because it was voted by colleagues."

"His contributions to students and faculty are well-known by his peers and by alumni who are always willing to share their respect and admiration for Dr. Daines. He has contributed greatly to the administration of the MBA program," said Paul H. Thompson, dean of the School of Management.

"Dr. Daines' major professional role is to be a teacher-learner," Thompson said. At the beginning of each semester, Daines commits to his students that he will never enter a classroom unprepared and that he expects no less from them. "Probing questions, spirited exchanges and well-prepared case discussions are typical of his classes," said Thompson. Because of the dedication to teaching, Daines has received several honors including MBA Teacher of the Year Award, the Exxon Teaching Excellence Award and the Karl G. Maeser Award.

"I appreciate the recognition and the sense of responsibilities those awards carry, but I hope I will always be committed to fulfill my university responsibilities — teaching, learning and scholarship — regardless of whether or not I receive the public honor," said Daines.

Daines graduated from Utah State University and then attended Stanford University where he received his master's degree in 1959. The next four years solidified his interests in academics and teaching at BYU, and in 1966 he completed his doctorate program at Indiana University. As the second director of BYU's MBA program from 1966-1978, he developed BYU's current MBA format of modular classes involving all segments and moved it into one that achieved national recognition.

Daines served as a financial consultant to the treasurer of Aetna Life and Casualty from 1974-1975. He has consulted with firms such as Atlantic Richfield Corporation, Federated Stores and Chase Manhattan Bank.

'Marching Businessmen' make their debut Friday

By JENNIFER MYERS
Universe Staff Writer

Forget about the typical high-kicking, flag-twirling drill team. "The Marching Businessmen," a new breed of precision performers, are making their BYU debut this Friday at Friday Night Live.

Members are clad in the official uniform of a suit jacket, white shirt, tie, jams (bright-colored bermuda shorts), tennis shoes and sunglasses.

With briefcase in hand, this 12-man drill team combines the professionalism of the business world with out-right fun.

Performing to Michael Jackson's "Beat It," the team performs a series of maneuvers that delight and entertain.

Mark Felkins, director of "The Marching Businessmen" admits that the whole idea is "crazy, but it adds character."

According to Felkins, the idea originated at Ricks College when a group of roommates was pressured to come up with an idea for the Ricks College Homecoming parade.

Since drill teams are a popular parade activity, said Felkins, "We thought, 'Why not start a drill team of our own?'"

The idea evolved through Felkins' reputation of being "such a businessman," he said.

Although the team originally performed for mere self-enjoyment, ac-ording to Felkins, development of the group is aimed toward mass appeal.

"Many activities at Ricks are aimed at certain audiences," said Felkins. "We wanted to do something everybody would enjoy doing and watching."

The homecoming parade performance was hailed as a success, according to group members, and the team became known throughout the school. In time, most team members came to BYU or left Ricks, according to Felkins, and rather than dissolving, the team plans to add new members and begin BYU performances.

Brad Bateman, a junior from Dallas, Texas, majoring in sociology, is a new member of the BYU team and said he is involved because he "likes to show off."

"This is the first time I've ever worn jams," said Bateman of his new experience.

"I just like to show off my legs," said Mike Olsen, a Utah Valley Community College student from Seattle, Wash.

Team members are not limited to business majors, but include art, drama and other majors, according to Felkins.

Felkins admits that new participants are a little reluctant to march around carrying a briefcase at first, but said, "Once everybody sees it, they want to become part of the group."

Computer information fair will offer free seminars

By JENNIFER MYERS
Universe Staff Writer

The Database and Data Communications Fair will be held Thursday and Friday in the Ernest L. Wilkinson Center.

"Computing for the '90s," organized by BYU's Computer Consultation Center, features a wide variety of seminars and exhibitions, according to the CCC.

The seminars begin at 8:30 a.m., 10:30 a.m., 1:30 p.m. and 3:30 p.m. They will be held in rooms 256, 257 and 258 ELWC.

John Edwards, director of the CCC, said the fair is for everyone.

"The fair is for beginners or advanced computer users," he said.

The 35 exhibition booths feature major vendors such as WordPerfect, Lotus, Microsoft and IBM and provide both detailed and general information for faculty and students, said Edwards.

The database seminars cover topics such as networking, the new OS/2 program and database updating, and are given by professionals in computer science, according to the CCC.

The fair also offers data communication seminars such as electronic mail, word processing and software programs, according to the CCC.

Brad Caldwell, a junior from Clagary, Canada majoring in advertising and systems demonstrator for the fair, said the fair is "a great idea."

"It gives all those that have an interest in computers a chance to have up-to-date database information," said Caldwell.

According to Edwards, the CCC has annual fairs that are designed to "expose faculty, staff and students to computer-related information."

Because the CCC sees database management growth potential to be high within the next 10 years, this year's program is directed towards database information, Edwards said.

Exhibitions will be held in the ELWC Garden Court. No reservations are required for the seminars. For more information, call 378-2089.

The Ballroom Dance Company will be featured in a major concert Friday and Saturday at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are available at the Marriott Center Ticket Office.

Colorful costumes

Dance concert will be a 'ball'

By NANCY LILYA
Universe Staff Writer

With the precision of cheerleaders and the emotions of actors, the Ballroom Dance Company will exhibit a kaleidoscope of color, movement and sound this weekend.

"That's Entertainment," the Broadway theme for the opening dance number, will set the mood for the Ballroom Dance Company when it presents its annual major concert in the Marriott Center Friday and Saturday at 7:30 p.m.

Some ballroom and Latin American medleys will be performed for the last time this year. Variety of costuming, dancing and lighting enhance the production, according to Lee Wakefield, artistic director.

Wakefield and his wife, Linda, costume director, will perform two numbers called "Cheek to Cheek" and "A Piece of Sky."

"Cheek to Cheek" is a dance choreographed from the Fred Astaire-Ginger Rogers' movie, "Top Hat." Mrs. Wakefield is shown in a re-creation of Ginger Rogers' original designed costume, according to Gerry Gibbons, director of the BYU Ballroom Dance Company back-up team.

"A Piece of Sky" is a theatrical piece choreographed by well-known ballroom dance choreographer Vernon Brock of Houston, Texas. The Brock piece was recently performed by the Wakefields at the United States Ballroom Championships, where they placed second, according to Gibbons.

"It's an interpretive piece of music that expands ballroom dance with lifts and movements," said Tom Murdock, managing director.

Some other dance numbers to be performed are "Swing Out," "La Bamba," "Carnival" and "Viennese Waltz."

"Swing Out," choreographed by Wakefield, features music by Glenn Miller and is a ten minute tribute to the swing era. The dancing style was popular during the big band era.

"In 'Swing Out,' a suite of dancers are reminiscing the swing band era," said Murdock.

"La Bamba" will use the title track from the original motion picture for the new mambo dance.

"Carnival" is a lively rendition of the theme song from the movie "Footloose."

"This 20 minute piece contains 100 different costumes," said Murdock.

The finale features all 160 dancers in the company who will perform a Viennese waltz, according to Gibbons.

"It is a very elegant look with chandeliers and southern bell dresses. We decided to have an elegant ending with the waltz," said Murdock. "New full-length costumes in colors of pink and aqua are very attractive, and the men will be in tails. Colorful costuming has become one of our trademarks, and this waltz finale is particularly stunning visually."

Costumes for the other numbers range from bubble dresses of hot pink and black in "La Bamba" to floor length gowns of light pastels in "Modern Medley" and "Viennese Waltz," according to Gibbons.

"The main purpose is to give students an opportunity to showcase what they have done throughout the year," said Wakefield. "It's the main performance of the year."

Each year the dance team mainly performs new dance numbers, according to Wakefield. Only a few will be used again for the next year.

Most styles of dance are used to add a variety of entertainment to the audience. The production is different each year, according to Wakefield.

Variety of dance styles are tied back to the ballroom dancing. Numerous Latin American dance pieces will also be performed.

Wakefield said people will come to see the quality of dancing and entertainment along with elaborate costumes.

"Traditional, contemporary, Latin America, character or period, theatrical and Broadway pieces will all be used," said Wakefield.

According to Gibbons, the Latin American team placed first in a competition in England and third in the world competition at Germany. The modern team took third place at England.

The Ballroom Dance Company was named the United States National Formation Champion, is a five-time winner of the prestigious British Formation Championship and holds the bronze medal from the World Formation Championships.

Tickets are available at the Marriott Center ticket office, 378-5666, or in Salt Lake City at 363-BYU1.

'Camelot' composer, Frederick Loewe, dies of heart failure

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Composer Frederick Loewe, who 50 years ago teamed with lyricist Alan Jay Lerner to enchant audiences with classics like "Gigi," "Camelot," "My Fair Lady" and "Brigadoon," has died at age 86.

The surviving member of one of the most successful collaborations in American musical history died on Valentine's Day of heart failure, said his guardian and friend, John Morris.

Lerner and Loewe produced such favorite songs as "Almost Like Being in Love," "I Could Have Danced All Night," "On the Street Where You Live," "I've Grown Accustomed to Her Face" and "If Ever I Would Leave You."

Loewe, known as Fritz to his friends, died Sunday at 1:51 p.m. at Desert Hospital, said a nursing supervisor who asked that her name not be used.

The composer was hospitalized last Wednesday with chest pains.

A public funeral was likely, said Morris, adding that Loewe's close friend, comedian Red Skelton, has written "a most beautiful eulogy."

When Lerner died in 1986, Loewe said, "It won't be long before we'll be writing together again. I just hope they have a decent piano up there."

Lerner and Loewe's 18-year partnership began with a one-night flop in Detroit in 1942.

They parted bitterly after "Camelot," their last Broadway hit, in 1960.

After a 1973 reunion for the Broadway production of "Gigi," they remained friends.

Loewe was born June 10, 1901, to a distinguished musical family in Vienna, Austria.

Loewe came to the United States in 1924 with hopes for a career as a piano soloist.

After his debut recital at Town Hall in New York was ignored, he played piano in clubs and movie houses and even worked as a busboy.

Lerner's fascination with the Scottish writer Sir James Barrie led to the team's first hit show, "Brigadoon," and their first hit song, "Almost Like Being in Love," in 1947.

"Brigadoon" ran 581 performances, was made into a film in 1954, was revived in 1980 and was part of the New York City Opera's repertory in 1986.

Loewe and Lerner went their separate ways for a time, but reunited in 1951 to produce "Paint Your Wagon."

Next came "My Fair Lady," a musical adaptation of George Bernard Shaw's "Pygmalion."

With a cast including Rex Harrison and Julie Andrews, the show began a record-setting, 2,717-performance run on March 15, 1956 and won Loewe his first of two Tony Awards.

No. 7 Cougars buck Rams for 20th victory

BYU's Jim Usevitch drives in two points during the Cougars 20th victory. BYU defeated the Rams of Colorado State, 86-80.

San Jose falls to Cougars; No. 11 gymnasts land win

By DALE ROWLEY
Universe Sports Writer

Despite having two athletes on the injured list, the 11th-ranked BYU Men's Gymnastics Team defeated San Jose State University, 266.8 to 259.25.

Saturday's victory marks the second dual-meet win in a row for the nationally-ranked Cougars.

BYU's Swedish gymnast, Per Brandstrom, placed second in the all-around competition with a score of 55.7, his best all-around score of the season.

However, Brandstrom was edged out of first place by Brian Heery, the Irish champion now attending SJSU. Heery scored a 55.95 in the all-around event.

Brandstrom also won the pommel horse and highbar events with scores of 9.3 and 9.55 respectively.

Cougar Rex Hughes also helped lead the team to victory, winning the still rings event with a score of 9.3.

This is the first time first-year coach Makoto Sakamota's Cougars have been ranked among the Top 20 teams in the nation.

BYU's 268.55 score from the Windy City Invitational in Chicago several weeks ago was what boosted the Cougars into the Top 20 by the National Gymnastics Coaches Association.

Since then, the Cougars have posted two scores above the 270 point level.

Because of injuries, two Cougars, Keith Rooks and Tod Hafner, were not able to compete against SJSU.

Rooks, who showed he could be NCAA finalist material when he scored a 9.75 in the vault against Eastern Montana last week, was out because of a triceps injury.

Hafner was also out for the meet with an injured wrist.

Both Hafner and Rooks are expected to be healthy when the Cougars host Santa Barbara this Saturday.

If the Cougars follow the improvement of Rooks, they will be in good shape.

"Keith has such strong legs and punching power that we are expecting great things from him on floor exercise too," said Sakamota.

"Per had his best meet of the season," said Sakamota. "We have a very strong team, but we lack depth."

BYU only had five men competing in the pommel horse and floor exercise.

Sakamota said he hopes his team can remain healthy because of depth problems.

However, despite lack of depth, Sakamota said, "We will continue to push just as hard as we can."

The No. 7 Cougars bucked heads with the Rams of Colorado State University, 86-80, to capture their 20th victory of the season and boost their national ranking one slot in AP's Top 20 basketball poll.

Despite BYU's win, the Rams kept the Cougars worrying as the two teams stayed neck-in-neck for the entire 40 minutes of play.

"I knew one thing going into this game — that CSU would play one great game on this trip," said Ladell Andersen, BYU's head coach. "We knew what we were in for."

With a 12-8 overall record, 3-5 in the WAC, the Rams weren't exactly the favorites going into Saturday's contest. But it took the final minute of the game to decide the victory.

"I don't want to take anything away from BYU because they are the toughest team we've played this season," said Boyd Grant, CSU's head coach. "I've probably never played a team that was as good a passing team as BYU. They're unselfish."

In a game that was tied 12 times, the Cougars opened up the scoring but were answered back by the Rams nearly every time.

"I thought they responded well," said Andersen. "Whatever we did wrong, they capitalized on it. We're in a great basketball league this year, and we just got through proving it."

Even though many people thought CSU would try to slow down BYU's pace, they came out full throttle and opened up a 25-19 lead in the first 10 minutes of the game.

By the end of the first half, the Cougars had squeaked ahead to a 38-37 lead, following a last second shot by CSU's Pat Durham.

"I think we played a very smart game," said senior Jim Usevitch, who led the Cougars with 22 points and eight rebounds. "In the tight situations, we got the ball where we needed it."

In a rare occurrence for college basketball, BYU's Mike Smith came up with a triple-double, landing 20 points, 12 rebounds and 10 assists.

"It's tough to do in college," said Smith. "They (CSU) let me have the ball on top — that was their mistake."

BYU's front-line trio of Usevitch, Smith and senior Jeff Chatman, who added 18 points, downed 60 points for the Cougars. But it was the guards who came up with the needy baskets down the stretch.

Cougar Marty Haws opened up the Cougars last lead with a basket at 2:15 on the clock. With 51 seconds remaining, senior Brian Taylor came up with a reverse layup underneath to put BYU ahead, 80-76.

"It opened up for me at the right time," said Taylor. "It wasn't that hot of a shot; I'm just happy it went in."

Four key free throws in the last 30 seconds by Taylor and Smith clinched the win for the Cougars, now 20-1, 9-0 in conference play.

Gymnasts come off third in tri-meet; rash of injuries plague women's team

By DALE ROWLEY
Universe Sports Writer

The BYU Women's Gymnastics Team, still suffering from a rash of injuries and illnesses, lost to host team 7th-ranked Nebraska (185.3) and University of Denver (176.4).

The Cougars scored a 169.2 during the tri-meet held in the Bob DeVaney Sports Center in Lincoln, Neb., Saturday night.

It was the second time this season the Cougars have faced UD. In their first meet against BYU, the Pioneers scored 177.4 to the Cougars' 174.3.

During the weekend meet, BYU's Marianne Williams scored 36.35 in the all-around competition, good for a fourth place behind Nebraska's Chrystal Savage. Cougar gymnast Lori Cragun scored her season best on the vault with a 9.25 score, but BYU's injuries and illness have continued to hold down team scores.

BYU was without Sonja Lieder, out with a stress fracture and it is unsure when she will return. Bev Snell is also out with a sprained back, but she is expected to be ready for competition this Friday when the Cougars host Utah State.

BYU's Gina Hansen also reinjured her leg on the bars, and was not able to compete in the rest of the meet, reducing the number of gymnasts to five. Hansen was injured on the Cougars first event.

"I knew if we executed and played tough too, we'd be all right," said Chatman. Haws added, "This team has a lot of confidence, even going down the stretch." The Rams fell to 12-9 overall, 3-6 in WAC play.

'Y' spikers blast Long Beach Vikings

By APRIL LOWRY
Universe Sports Writer

Experience led the BYU Men's Volleyball Team to a victory over the Long Beach City College Vikings.

The Cougars got off to a strong start with a first game 15-4 defeat over the Vikings Saturday night.

However, in the second game, despite digs by Ric Munds and several ace serves by Brent Berry, BYU gave up the game 15-10 to Long Beach.

The Cougars Head Coach Tom Peterson attributed the loss to the poor passing as a result of running some new lineups.

"Our passing was kind of suspect at that point. Overall when running new lineups, this area tends to suffer the most."

"For sure we shouldn't have lost to these guys, but they got a run on us and we couldn't stop it," Peterson said.

In the third game, BYU built up a 4-0 lead but Long Beach quickly came back to make the score 4-3.

At 6-3 the Vikings and the Cougars had a thrilling and elongated rally; senior Lane Peterson made the final kill. The Cougars showed their strength during the post-loss comeback to defeat LBCC with an impressive 15-5 win.

The Cougars posted a 15-9 victory in the fourth game to make it the final one to cap the match victory.

Coach Peterson said the Cougars had difficulty not only with new lineups and passing but serving also.

"Way too many serves were missed, including the fourth game point serve. But our jump serves were working pretty well. Bill (Brown), Doug (Pickney) and Lane (Peterson) had some good ones. Bill was the most consistent," Coach Peterson said.

Brown, a sophomore, said the team ran a lot of different lineups which led to some confusion for people playing different positions. "It wasn't real spectacular, but we did what we had to do to win."

Coach Peterson said, "If the game had been a big-time game in the Fieldhouse, I would not have messed around with our lineups that much."

"All of our guys had some good games. Brent Berry always plays hard, and Pat (Lindahl) I thought had a good match. I think Lane for the most part had a nice match also," said Peterson. "Lane hit from the back row real well tonight and that helped us get the back row going again," he added. "We have a new setter and getting sets to the guys at the net is what we are concentrating on right now. To get the deep court going takes a little longer but Lane was really on tonight so that was nice."

Middle-blocker Brent Berry goes for the ball in BYU's victory over the Vikings of Long Beach City College. The men have one more home match.

LBCC Head Coach Gary Jacobs said in spite of his team's defeat he felt the trip, which the team makes every other year, was well worth the experience gained playing opposite the BYU team.

"We are never as good physically as your varsity but if our guys can just play them close a little bit, like we did getting one game off them tonight, then it really helped us out," Jacobs said.

BYU's next contest, which will also be the final home match, is against the University of Manitoba on Feb. 26. The competition and a post-match dance will be held in the Smith Field House.

Winter Olympics underway; Hockey team lands victory

By BRADY BINGHAM
Universe Sports Writer

Under an array of controversy, for the first time since 1960 when the United States won a gold medal at Squaw Valley, the U.S. Olympic Hockey team won its opening game.

Even 1980's miracle team could only manage a tie to Sweden.

Skeptics in and around Calgary's Olympic effort have voiced opinions that with medal round rule changes and a so-called easy opener, the Olympic Committee has paved the way for the United States to be a medal winner.

First, the International Olympic Committee changed the rules for the medal round.

Previously, in order to make it to the medal round, a team would need to finish first or second in their six team grouping, which divides 12 Olympic squads.

Now the top three teams will be taken from each grouping. This improves the United States' chances of qualifying, considering they are grouped with the Soviet squad and a perennial powerhouse from Czechoslovakia.

Second, Team USA drew Austria for its opener, the 11th seed in a 12 team field. This proves not only influential for American television viewers, seeing their team look overpowering, but also for United States' team members who could use a victory to catapult them to the medal round.

But forget all that. The headlines still read, "U.S. Hockey team rips Austria, 10-6."

Remember 1980 when Bill Baker opened the scoring for the United States with a first period goal against Sweden to give them the early lead? This time it was Lane MacDonald, scoring with 11 minutes left on the

'Y' swimmers lose; record now at 4-4 after weekend meet

By KIMBERLY WHITING

The BYU Men's Swimming Team lost to the University of Washington 98-85, after the Huskies took an immediate lead by winning the opening 400-meter relay, 3:40.5 to 3:40.6.

The meet was even thereafter with each team winning five events.

Winners for the Cougars were junior Kurt Dickson in the 200-meter freestyle, freshman Enrique Gonzales in the 50-meter freestyle and senior Jin Gee Oon in the 100-meter freestyle.

Freshman Ng Yue Meng set a meet record in the 200-meter breaststroke with a time of 2:06.4.

The Cougars took first and second in the 400-meter freestyle with Gonzales with a time of 3:10.4 and sophomore Kip Twitchell at 3:10.9.

BYU competed without the help of their divers, because UW had no diving facilities.

The Cougars host the University of Utah Utes Thursday at 7 p.m.

BYU hopes to improve their 4-4 record Thursday in the final dual meet this season.

Cougars split weekend games

By KIMBERLY WHITING
Universe Sports Writer

The BYU Women's Basketball Team split two games, losing 87-80 to 24th-ranked DePaul and defeating Portland State 103-83 in the Marriott Center.

Friday, after a close first half in which DePaul star player Diana Vines picked up two quick fouls in the first four minutes and sat out the rest of the first half, the Cougars passed the Lady Blue Demons to lead 43-41 at the half.

"They were a very quick team. They start running by you and you start reaching in and getting in foul trouble," said BYU's coach, Courtney Leishman. BYU held Vines to nine points and 10 rebounds; she is averaging 24.2 points and 12.5 rebounds per game.

According to John Lancot, DePaul's assistant sports information director, they were fortunate the other DePaul players picked up the slack Vines' absence left. Vines is such an aggressive player that the coach sat her out most of the first half so she could play again in the second half, said Lancot.

Six three-point buckets by DePaul in less than six minutes of play put the Lady Blue Demons ahead midway through the second half and the Cougars could never catch them after that.

Freshman Kim Boggan, who was 0-7 on three pointers before this game, hit 3-3 and teammate Andrea "Peewee" Morgan, connected on 4-10 three pointers to help lift DePaul to victory.

Leading scorer for the Cougars was freshman forward Searlett Overly who had 26 points and 10 rebounds Friday night. Also in double figures for the Cougars were senior forward Cathy Nixon with 19 points and 11 rebounds and sophomore forward Michelle Carter with 11 points.

Saturday the Cougars shot a consistent 86.7 percent from the line in both the first half and second half to help in their victory over Portland State.

"I like that 87 percent from the line; that's pretty," said Leishman.

Three of the Cougars points came as a result of three technical fouls on Portland, two on the coach and one on junior Diana Brooks. Junior Karina Cougar sophomore Michelle Carter battles for the ball in BYU's game against DePaul Friday. The Cougars split two weekend games.

Zapata connected on all three technical shots and shot a perfect 5-5 from the line.

Leading the Cougars was Nixon with 29 points and 10 rebounds. Three other Cougars were in double figures, Carter with 21, junior forward Susan Shumway with 16 and Overly with 11.

"We moved the ball well, shot well and played decent defense," said Leishman.

Freshman guard Kim Talbot cut loose with 2:37 left in the game to connect on her first three pointer of the season. Talbot followed with a fast break where she went up against two defenders to connect for two more, making the score 101-76.

"We moved the ball a lot better tonight," said Talbot.

The Cougars travel to Colorado State University Thursday and then to Laramie Saturday to take on Wyoming.

Grapplers divided by Oregon teams

'Y's traveling tennis squad splits record with win, loss

By ANTON GARRITY
Universe Sports Writer

After competing in the Northwestern Invitational in Chicago, the BYU Women's Tennis Team came away with one win and one loss.

The Cougars opened play on Friday against Oklahoma State in the Northwestern University Quad Tennis Meet where they finished with a 4-5 loss.

The singles matches have been tough to come by in the past couple of weeks for the Cougars. Susanna Lee and Michelle Taylor were BYU's only singles players able to grab victories. Lee defeated Jane Wood, 6-0, 6-3, with Taylor beating Moniek Margaroli, 6-2, 6-2.

"We need to be tougher in singles. We need one more win up there in singles and we're having a struggle to get it," said BYU Coach Ann Valentine.

Lee and Sydney Fulford moved up to the No. 1 doubles team because of their strong play in last week's Rolex championships.

Despite the move, the BYU doubles combo won just two of three matches. Lesley Hakala and Taylor, playing at the number two position, and Mary Beth Young and Sheri Yandle at the number three position picked up the two points from the doubles matches.

"This match puts OSU up on us in the Central Region, which could mean they would get the automatic berth to the NCAA's. We are going to have to play the rest of our matches tougher," said Valentine.

The Cougars then took on the hosting team Saturday, the Northwestern Wildcats, and defeated them with an 8-1 team score.

BYU swept five of the six singles matches and were able to win all three of the doubles matches.

This is the first time in many years that BYU has gained a victory over the Wildcats on their home floor.

Lee started the Cougars rolling with the first win of the evening. Taylor then followed at the number two position and Fulford at the number four position with come-from-behind victories.

Hakala and Young also notched up points in the win column.

In doubles action, Hakala/Taylor defeated Schuschel/Nelson, 6-4, 6-2. Lee/Fulford defeated Staples/Wiley, 6-4, 4-6, 6-3.

Finishing up the match was Young/Yandle defeating Evans/Galloway, 6-2, 6-1.

Second-ranked John Kohls was one of three BYU wrestlers to win both matches in a pair of dual meets split by the Cougars over the weekend.

Kohls, who continues to be ranked second by Amatuer Wrestling News, moved his record to 19-2 on the season by scoring a pair of shutouts.

The first, which helped BYU secure its fourth team victory of the year, came Thursday night in a critical match against Oregon State's Michael Simons.

Kohls accumulated an amazing 4:53 riding time en route to a 11-0 victory over Simons.

Following Thursday's match, Kohls won an additional exhibition match over Eric Miller, 7-0, with 3:37 riding time.

Then on Friday Kohls defeated his competitor from Oregon University, Danny White, 10-0, again with well over 2:00 riding time.

According to the head trainer for BYU's wrestling team, "Kohls' power and strength enables him to just hold his opponent defenseless. Then he just wears them down until finally he (Kohls) wins with a pin or time runs out."

Women tracksters set school records; Cougar sprinter qualifies for nationals

By ANTON GARRITY
Universe Sports Writer

At the Frank Sevigne Husker Invitational held at the University of Nebraska, the BYU Women's Indoor Track Team set two school records and had a runner qualify for Nationals.

Sprinter Susan DeVries Christensen of Salt Lake City beat her own school record of 7.88 with a time of 7.85 in the 55-meter hurdles and qualified for Nationals by overcoming the NCAA standard of 7.90. Christensen placed second in the event.

Cougar distance runner Nancy Anderson set a school mark in the 5,000-meter run while posting a time of 16:57.0 with her third place finish. Anderson beat Rebecca Chamberlain's year-old mark of 17:41.

Other BYU tracksters who passed the Friday's trials in their respective events to qualify for the finals on Saturday, were Georgia Johnson, who ran a personal best time in the 1,000-meters for second place (2:54.79); Elizabeth Tayler, third in the mile (5:01.55); Kathy Gordon, fourth in the 600-meter dash (1:35.50); Birgitta Troive, seventh in the shot put (45-10 and three quarters inches); the 4-by-400 relay team, eighth (3:57.710) and Sheri Morford thirteenth in the high jump (5-5 and one quarter inch).

Stephanie Packham also qualified for the finals of the 800-meter run with a 2:14.51 time, but had to be scratched from Saturday's events because of muscle distress.

Michelle Du Toit and Kelly Delph also missed qualifying in the 55-meter dash with their times of 7.13 and 7.39 respectively.

"Susan (Christensen) is running hot right now, and we're going to see big things from her. We're now excited for the meet at Northern Arizona next weekend where we expect to pick up some more national qualifiers," said BYU Coach Craig Poole.

Other Cougars who won both their matches were junior 126-pound Tim Jones, who moved his record to 13-6 after returning from an injury, and senior 142-pound Jon Evans, who was wrestling his last match at home for BYU.

Also wrestling his last match at home was senior 150-pound Jeff Tripp.

Tripp, who moved his record to an impressive 11-1-1 Thursday night by breaking a tie with just 20 seconds left in the match over Oregon State's Eric Hengler, lost to Oregon's George Johnston who holds a 22-9-1 record on the season.

In team results Thursday, BYU knocked off Oregon State (26-18), which is led by the winningest wrestling coach in the nation (Dale Thomas) with a 32 year record of 590-141-9.

On Friday, BYU dropped its record to 3-8-1, losing to an experienced Oregon team led by Coach Ron Finley, who coached the 1984 U.S. Olympic team and was USA Wrestling magazine's coach of the year that same year.

BYU grapplers will next travel to Logan to meet Utah State University and Weber State in a pair of dual meets.

Gov. Bangertter gives positive talk

Fund-raiser gives GOP a boost

By LINDA S. MATHESON
Universe Staff Writer

The Utah County Republican Party received a boost at its annual fund-raising dinner from Gov. Norman Bangertter, Congressman Howard Nielson and Lt. Gov. Val Oveson, guests of honor at the event.

In a speech following the $25-a-plate meal in a Utah Valley Community College ballroom, Bangertter discussed the positive job growth in Utah County.

"Utah County has turned the corner, as has the rest of the state," he said. "Our economy over the past few years has been the tenth fastest growing in the country and the fastest growing in the western states."

Bangertter also said the decisions he had to make during his first years in office were difficult, but they are "the types of decisions we have to make."

Some of the most difficult were decisions regarding education, taxes and economic concerns with Geneva Steel and the oil embargo, he said. The Bangertter administration has had more problems to face than any others in Utah's recent history and because of the choices made, Utah's economy has begun to improve, Bangertter said.

Nielson urged the audience to vote Republican in the upcoming elections. He spent the major portion of his speech criticizing Senator Wayne

Owens and discussing the need for Utah Republicans in federal government who will back up the president.

One of the highlights of the dinner was gifts awarded the government officers. Chattering teeth, pacifiers and a laugh box received good response from the audience, though everyone's favorite was an athletic supporter awarded to Oveson to assist him in supporting the governor during difficult decisions.

According to Steven Shallenberger, Utah County Republican Party chairman, the county has a high percentage of Republican voters. "Approximately 93 percent of Utah County is Republican."

Approximately $6,000 was raised to help Utah County Republican candidates in the upcoming election year. This was $2,000 over the goal, said Shallenberger, who was pleased with the turnout.

About 350 tickets were sold for last Friday's fund-raising dinner; twice as many as last year.

Shallenberger said the high number of tickets sold was because of public concern during election years. "It is getting closer to election year and more people are interested in what's happening," he said.

An auction held after the dinner raised additional funds for Republican candidates. "It (the money) directly supports the candidates," said Shallenberger.

Khomeini's troops in control; Iran prepares for his death

EDITOR'S NOTE — Nine years ago, the forces of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini overthrew the Peacock Throne of Iran and instituted a fundamentalist Islamic regime. Now Khomeini is old and sick, and a bloody war with neighboring Iraq continues. Here is a look from within Iran by an Associated Press correspondent who visited it recently.

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's regime is in firm control as his fundamentalist Islamic revolution begins its 10th year, but a power struggle looms when the 87-year-old patriarch dies.

His lieutenants appear to be preparing for Khomeini's death, which will be a major test for the revolution at a time of war, economic hardship and increasing international isolation.

Khomeini is reported in poor health and has sought recently, after years of reluctance, to eliminate obstacles to economic and social reform.

He remains the revered Imam, symbol of an Islamic resurgence that toppled the late Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi and brought Khomeini home in triumph Feb. 1, 1979, after 15 years in exile.

The old man's messianic charisma and authority have held the revolution together through the long war with Iraq, and Iran's other pressing international and domestic problems.

Jockeying for position in the misty world of Iranian politics has intensified because of elections for the 270-seat Majlis, or parliament, scheduled for April 8.

Chief among the rival camps are the revolutionary purists personified by Prime Minister Hussein Musavi and those called pragmatists, who are led by the parliament speaker, Hashemi Rafsanjani.

No threat is evident to the regime itself despite political rivalries and domestic grumbling.

Senior revolutionary leaders acknowledge public discontent but say economic hardship stems from the war, not the revolution. Iraq invaded Iran in September 1980 after several border incidents.

They also claim more public projects have been completed than under the shah and more has been done for the "mostathafen" (deprived), the millions of slum dwellers and peasants who formed the bedrock support for Khomeini.

Streets are full of people searching for bargains in the well-stocked stores, which are prohibitively expensive, or standing in long lines outturn, has been relaxed somewhat.

Many women still wear the black head-to-toe chador.

A sign outside Tehran's main bus terminal declares in English and Farsi: "Women not wearing Islamic garb will not be allowed to enter."

Others appear in public wearing only headscarves, however, and many women use lipstick and makeup. Such "Western decadence" a few years ago would have meant arrest and humiliation by the Gashte Zahrah, the religious vigilantes who patrol the city in unmarked cars watching for moral turpitude.

Gashte Zahrah patrols have not disappeared, but they are less active.

Enforcement of the ban on alcoholic beverages also has eased. Whisky, vodka and other liquor are readily available on the black market.

Crowds are large at movie theaters, where the fare generally is patriotic epics, sagas of ancient Persian glories, or feature films from Japan or the Soviet Union.

State-run television's two channels are dominated by religious and political discussions, war footage and documentaries extolling Iranian victories.

The government's efficient security network extends to village level. Cities, offices, schools and businesses are governed by Islamic councils, run by loyalists of the regime.

By Western count two million Iranians, many of them middle class, have fled rather than put up with Islamic restrictions, economic privation and sending their sons to the war.

An estimated 600,000 Iranians have been killed and 750,000 wounded, but foreign diplomats say the conflict has helped strengthen the revolution despite the cost.

It has built patriotic fervor in the mass of Persian Iran's overwhelmingly Shiite Moslem population of about 50 million against the Iraqis, who are Arabs and ancient enemies.

Women not wearing Islamic garb will not be allowed to enter.

side shops that sell rationed goods at government-controlled prices.

Everything is available on the black market — or "free market," as the Iranians call it — at 10 times the official price.

Hojatoleslam Sadeq Khalkali, a former Islamic prosecutor who ordered the execution of hundreds of opponents in the revolution's early days, had this to say about political disagreement during a recent Majlis debate: "The brave troops at the front should not be worried by what may appear to be irreconcilable disagreements."

Security remains tight, there is great distrust of foreigners, and the United States still is the "Great Satan."

Revolutionary guards, fanatical followers of Khomeini who are present in every village and city neighborhood, appear to have stifled resistance.

Islamic puritanism, pervasive in the early days after Khomeini's re-

Getting the job you want isn't easy. Especially for recent college grads. Very few majors will prepare you for a specific career, and guarantee you get hired right out of college. For the rest of you, finding something you like won't be simple. You could contemplate grad school. Or law school. Two or three more years of school, and student loans comparable to the national debt. There are very few jobs out there that require little or no experience. Jobs that you would enjoy, where the only requirement is a college degree.

The Federal Aviation Administration is now hiring Air Traffic Control Specialists. Over 3,000 of them. All you need to qualify for testing is a college degree. Any major is welcome. You don't even need any aviation experience. East Bay Industrial Park Development brings jobs

By RALEEN BECKHAM
Universe Staff Writer

Provo is growing rapidly as East Bay Industrial Park continues to bring in new businesses and increase job openings, according to East Bay Development officials.

"As businesses begin to develop, a tremendous amount of people from the south are being drawn into Provo to do their shopping," said Mike Vanchiere, project manager of East Bay Development. "Several new buildings will shortly be opening or starting construction."

A new Sizzler restaurant will break ground in March; a development company will be starting construction of a 200,000 square foot shopping center, and a new day-care center has submitted a site plan for approval, according to Vanchiere.

"The (Provo City) council is quite pleased with the way East Bay Industrial Park is growing and expanding," said councilmember Stan Brown, who is also on the city Economic Development and Land Use Committee.

Brown said one of the committee's main goals is to continue to market the properties and push for the expansion and development of the area.

The East Bay Industrial Park is not only bringing in new business for Provo and southern Utah residents, but it is also opening up additional employment opportunities, according to a recent survey conducted by East Bay developers.

According to the survey, 3,500 people are now employed in the park.

"Two committees are responsible for the development of East Bay," said Vanchiere, who is project manager for the development committee.

The other committee is the Architectural Review Committee.

Duties of the development committee include discussing issues such as zoning and strategies on how to prepare the sites.

The architectural committee's duties include enforcing conditions and restrictions set by East Bay developers regarding landscaping and ensuring that businesses comply with the industrial park's conditions and standards.

"East Bay has been in development for four years," said Vanchiere.

"The first two years were spent financing the project and we are now actively engaged in filling up the park."

East Bay Industrial Park continues to draw businesses to Provo in its fourth year of development, bringing much needed jobs to the area.

New additions to the park are coming in the future. Currently, Novell, Price Savers and Arby's are located in the park.

Government pays $1 million to gain river water rights

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Hoping to protect endangered fish, the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation has made the first $1 million payment in the government's effort to obtain Colorado River water rights, agency officials say.

The construction of huge federal dam projects has resulted in the slowing of the river's historically swift flow upon which native aquatic life depends. Under federal law, the fish must be protected, so the bureau launched its Endangered Species Recovery Plan.

Plan aims

The plan is aimed at saving four threatened species — squawfish, bonytail chub, humpback chub and razorback sucker.

All are listed as endangered except the razorback, which is a candidate for listing, said BOR Regional Director Clifford Barrett. The program to obtain water rights along the river will cost an estimated $10 million, he said. Congress will be asked to fund the rest of the program, Barrett said.

Plan designed

Last month, Interior Secretary Donald Hodel signed the plan, along with the governors of Utah, Colorado and Wyoming.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, which received the first payment, will manage the recovery program.

Fish and Wildlife will identify where water rights will be purchased, then buy them. Under terms of a funds transfer agreement with BOR, the Fish and Wildlife Service will be helped by the National Fish and Wildlife Foundation.

Buying water rights

Buying the water rights will ensure that sufficient water is left in streams to protect the endangered fish, Barrett said.

The recovery plan includes habitat management, development and maintenance; stocking of native fish; managing non-native species, including sport fishing; research; monitoring; and collecting data.

New bill could protect home buyer

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Rep. Craig Peterson has introduced legislation that if passed, would require contractors to give written notification to home buyers as to whether any suppliers or subcontractors have been paid.

House Bill 271 is sponsored by the Orem Republican to discourage incidents in which contractors have left home owners with thousands of dollars in unpaid bills, and then filed for bankruptcy to avoid collection.

Under Peterson's bill, contractors violating the notice requirement could be jailed up to a year and fined $2,500.

Currently, home owners are unprotected from such indiscretions by contractors, and Utah law allows unpaid subcontractors to file liens against a home in such cases.

For example, in 1986 Kent Gordon and his family moved into a new home in Orem, only to have $10,000 in liens placed on their house by suppliers and subcontractors who had not been paid by the contractor. In Gordon's case, the contractor protected himself by later filing for bankruptcy.

"How come the subs are after me? I never made a deal to pay them a dime," Gordon said. "They should be after the contractor. I paid my money, and I'll pay on the house for the next 30 years. There should be some type of regulation preventing this."

Besides the notice requirement, Peterson's legislation also would stipulate that contractors cannot force buyers to close their purchase unless they provide preliminary notice of unpaid bills.

"I've talked to a lot of people, and I feel it has a pretty good chance of getting through," Peterson said. "I think this is really an important piece of consumer legislation."

Peterson drafted the bill with help from the Home Builders Association of Utah and the Associated General Contractors.

He said under his law, contractors still could flee to bankruptcy court for protection from possible civil action, but would be subject to criminal proceedings.

"They may still be protected financially, but not criminally," Peterson said. "Up to this point, there's been no legal crime committed. Sure they've been dishonest or guilty of poor judgment. But they could file under bankruptcy and get off."

Peterson, who has several neighbors facing liens sparked by contractors who didn't pay bills and subsequently filed for bankruptcy, said he believes the law will be vigorously enforced if passed.

Bill Fairbanks, president of the Utah Valley Home Builders Association, said the bill was one-sided.

"I don't know if this is the right tool," he said.

Section of I-70 to open; last part to open in 1989

RICHFIELD (AP) — Utah Department of Transportation officials say another 23-mile section of Interstate 70 in Sevier County will be opened this spring.

By bringing the section running from Kimberly Junction to Clear Creek Canyon into use, less than 10 miles of the highway — from Richfield to Sigurd — will remain to be opened. That last section is to open in 1989.

The highway has been brought to grade and lacks only paving from the north Richfield intersection to Sigurd. A short section of less than 3 miles is under construction west of Richfield, changing the landscape as large sections of the mountain are blasted away, UDOT says.

Opening date for the 23-mile section from Kimberly Junction to Richfield will depend on how quickly work can go forward on four interchanges, said Sterling Davis, UDOT's district engineer in Richfield.

Connector roads to the interchanges are in south Richfield, Elsinore, Joseph and Sevier Junction.

The last section of I-70 in Clear Creek Canyon that was opened was from the Cove Fort Summit to Kimberly Junction in 1984. Five miles remain closed in the canyon.

A section of I-70 from Sigurd to Salina opened last October.

Study links zinc to good eyesight

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A two-year study conducted by University of Utah researchers has linked an eye disease called macular degeneration to poor nutrition and a low intake of zinc.

Macular degeneration results in a muddling of central vision, but peripheral vision is not affected, university ophthalmologist Mano Swartz said.

The macula, part of the retina which lines the back of the eye, is responsible for seeing fine detail and perceiving color. Probably as a result of "wear and tear" through aging, the macula begins to thin out in some people, researchers say.

Among people over the age of 65 in the United States and Western Europe, macular degeneration is the leading cause of severe vision loss. No one knows what causes it, and no cure exists.

National surveys show many elderly Americans are zinc deficient. And, because it is the most abundant trace element in the eye, Swartz opted to study its role in eye disease.

The two-year study involved 151 northern Utahns with macular degeneration. Half were given high doses of zinc while a comparison group received placebos.

"The progression of disease or rate of vision loss was statistically lower in those who got the zinc," Swartz said. "It wasn't a cure, but there was a difference."

He warned that taking high doses of zinc has dangerous side effects and may contribute to anemia and heart disease.

"The results support further research, so people should not take zinc unless under the direct supervision of an ophthalmologist," he said.

"We're not advising people to go out and start taking zinc, but we do recommend people are well-nourished," Swartz said. He added adequate supplies of zinc are found in chicken, fish and meat.

Nutritionists contend elderly people eat those items, but their portions are so small they don't get adequate amounts of vitamins and minerals.

"We've found that 19 of 20 elderly people get insufficient amounts of zinc in their diets." However, he said this study was "a small, pilot study on a select group of people with macular degeneration."

Macular degeneration tends to run in families. It affects about one in nine Americans over the age of 65, and four to five million Americans have suffered visual loss as a result of it.

Marine remembers Korean War battle

KAYSVILLE (AP) — The senior general of the Chinese Army wanted the Marines killed "as you would snakes in your homes," recalls Jerry Eitner, a sergeant in the First Marine Division fighting in North Korea in late 1950.

He'd never been so cold — or so hungry — and the carnage of the battle of Chosin Reservoir is etched permanently in his memories.

Eitner and 15,000 other United Nations troops were outnumbered nearly 10-to-one by more than 120,000 soldiers from the People's Republic of China.

"We were totally surrounded. Of course we didn't know it then, but we were told later that the Chinese had been given orders to totally annihilate the allied forces — to the man," he said.

It had only been three years since Eitner had graduated from West High School in Salt Lake City. It hadn't been that long since he had double-dated and eaten hamburgers and fries at the local soda shop.

In mountainous North Korea, Eitner was huddled in sub-zero temperatures, scraping rock-hard food out of a can with a bayonet. It defrosted in his mouth.

"It'd get down to 40 below zero. I can't describe that kind of cold. I'd never been that cold in my life and I am never going to get that cold again," he said.

On this day in February 1988, it is warm in the office of Clover Club Foods in Kayville, where Eitner sits behind a desk. Eitner, now a South Ogden resident, is director of sales for the food company, where he's worked for 35 years. He paused, taking a sip of coffee, and then folded his hands together.

"It's hard to convey what a dramatic thing we were involved in over there," he said. "By the time I got there, everyone thought the worst part of the war was over, that we'd be home for Christmas. I figured I'd be able to go home and tell everyone what it was like. I didn't think I'd be able to go home and say I'd seen that kind of suffering, the kinds of death."

Eitner said the Chinese troops attacked in human waves, one right after the other. "They didn't care who got hit or killed, they kept coming, trying to wear us down," he said.

The battle of Chosin Reservoir was a retreat more than a battle. Eitner said allied troops fought their way along 70 miles of a mountainous road pocked with roadblocks of Chinese troops.

"It was high-plateau country in North Korea with one mean road out of it. They had surrounded us at the reservoir. There were massive roadblocks," he said.

When the fighting ended, more than 3,000 U.N. troops were dead, 5,000 were wounded and thousands more suffered from frostbite. The First Marine Division later received a Presidential Unit Citation for defeating seven enemy divisions.

Eitner and other Americans who survived the campaign are now members of the "Chosin Few," a U.S. organization specifically for Korean veterans.

The group hopes to establish a memorial for Korean veterans at Angelgate Park near Los Angeles.
